

Free Trial Terms

1. By applying to participate in a trial of Poly hardware, software or services ("Product"), you agree to abide by these terms and conditions together with any end user license agreement and any service description terms which may be applicable together with the Poly Sales Promotion Terms available here ("Terms")
2. Eligibility to participate in a trial of the Products shall be as determined in these Terms and as may be further set out in the trial description. Poly shall, in its sole discretion, be permitted to refuse any application for the trial of a Product for any reason.
3. The period of the trial shall be as set out in the trial description ("Trial Period"). The Trial Period may not be extended unless Poly grants an extension, in writing, in its sole discretion.
4. At the end of the Trial Period, you are required, at your own cost and at your own risk, to return the complete Product in its original condition and with all of its original packaging, in-box material, accessories and cables to Poly using such return method as Poly directs. Incomplete returns or damaged returned products may incur a charge equivalent to the then current manufacturer's recommended selling price of the Product.
5. The Product shall remain the property of Poly at all times and you are required to take reasonable care of the Product and follow all recommended maintenance requirements in respect of such Product. No right to purchase the Product or to extend the Trial Period shall arise.
6. The Product may be a new or refurbished product.
7. You are responsible for any and all customs duties and import taxes in respect of the receipt of the Product and its return at the end of the Trial Period to Poly.
8. The Product must be used, at all times, in accordance with its instructions.
9. By participating in the trial of the Product, you agree that Poly, its agents and representatives may contact you for the purposes of marketing Poly products and services.