EMPOWER EMPLOYEES TO MEET AS EQUALS

It's up to IT to make sure employees working remotely or in shared spaces have the same great Zoom experience as their colleagues in the conference room. Anything less hurts the professional image of your employees and can reflect poorly on your business.

Here are a few considerations for choosing audio and video devices that optimize your employees' Zoom experience across group and personal workspaces.

FOSTER EMPLOYEE CONFIDENCE WITH CONSISTENCY

Choose professional-grade headset, video, and phone devices so you can consistently block out background noise, improve image clarity, and increase employee comfort and ease-of-use.

ENSURE GLOBAL SUPPORT

With work now taking place everywhere, make sure your device vendor offers local inventory and support no matter the location.

PRESERVE YOUR FREEDOM OF CHOICE

Look for a device vendor with a range of solutions that meets the needs of both individuals and group spaces, without the hassle of managing multiple contracts.

LEVERAGE EXPERTISE

Look for an experienced partner that can help you plan, deploy, and manage a large Zoom integration.

USE ZOOM-COMPATIBLE DEVICES

Make sure the devices you choose are compatible with Zoom to avoid performance issues and ensure the best quality experience.
